The only time you get a breakout in your 30s is when you're running late to dinner with people you haven't seen in years. It was after 8pm when I desperately raided the review drawer for anything within cooee of my skin tone. Initial feelings it might be too light were answered by angry red swelling. I'd hate for anyone to think my gratitude for this product is due to a lack of anything better. For a long time I used a brush concealer and sang its praises. But this sponge-tipped applicator practically blends as you apply it. I've used it for random spots ever since. Easy to apply, sits well with or without foundation, and you don't need to cake it on.
