

Inside Our Mineral Makeup Cosmetics Case

5 SEPTEMBER, 2011 BY DAILY GLOSS LEAVE A COMMENT

Makeup is a bit of a vicious cycle right? We wear it to conceal imperfections and blemishes but constant and heavy wear can clog the pores contributing to the development of said blemishes. Promising product that not only covers but also helps prevent imperfections from forming in the first place it's no surprise mineral makeup is predicted to replace conventional makeup in the next 5-10 years.

But buying mineral isn't a completely foolproof method for a flawless complexion. There are, of course, varying degrees of quality in the mineral market. We've sifted through many of the products out there and here are our must have mineral makeup items.

Pressed Powder: Enhance by Natural Compatibles Wet & Dry Foundation

We love makeup that multi-tasks and none does more so than the Wet & Dry Foundation by Natural Compatibles. As the name suggests this pressed powder can be applied with a damp sponge for a liquid foundation look or as dry powder depending on the coverage required. This product lasts all day but when the day continues into the night without time for a complete makeup overhaul we like to apply it wet in the morning and touch up with a dry sponge throughout the evening. Conveniently it comes packaged in a purse sized reusable compact so you can keep it on hand at any time.
